SALESFORCE VS INVESTOR CRMS

How far each one goes. The honest version.

From someone who builds Salesforce for a living, so I'll tell you when not to use it.

INVESTOR CRMS

1

Ready for wholesaling on day one.

Pipeline, stages and seller fields come built in, and some include calling and texting. The faster start.

SALESFORCE · DATA

2

You build your own model.

Lead, property, offer, contract, buyer, assignment, all linked. Enterprise allows 200 custom objects and 500 fields per object.

Source: Salesforce Help, edition allocations, Oct 2026

SALESFORCE · AUTOMATION

3

Flow runs without you.

→ When a record changes

→ On a schedule

→ Approvals, like an offer over MAO

SALESFORCE · REPORTS

4

If it's a field, you can report on it.

Cost per closed deal by source. Offers over MAO by rep. Weekly snapshots to see the trend.

5

Don't judge it by the list price.

Most businesses don't pay list. After a call with a Salesforce account executive, many get a discount based on the business and the number of users.

Get a quote before you compare.

WHEN IT'S OVERKILL

6

Stay with an investor CRM if you're solo, doing a few deals a month, and the pipeline fits.

Salesforce makes sense with several teams or markets, or reports your tool can't build.

WHICH SIDE ARE YOU ON?

Full side-by-side, with sources.

amrmagdy.com/salesforce-vs-investor-crms